

Defensive Tactics for Executive Protection

Protection Response Tactics

This Defensive Tactics course is designed by Alan Baker in collaboration with EPI to produce a revolutionary system comprised of a variety of striking and grappling arts tailored to fit the bodyguards and Personal Protection Specialist's role and environment. Protection Response Tactics (PRT) is an innovative and proven system of proportionate & appropriate response techniques designed for both the novice and skilled protector.

Module 1:

This module teaches the basic tools and mechanics needed to defend and protect a client from a low level threat all the way up to a more aggressive threat.

Due to the visual nature of some environments it is important to understand the nature of lower level controls and how to apply them so they will be effective as well as be able to read the body language of a threat and know when to respond with elevated force.

Module 3:

This module begins introducing the firearm into the previous material learned. They start to recognize and ingrain the needed reactions and techniques to respond to it. It also covers the principals involved with firearm disarming.

We believe that anyone will develop a greater understanding using this educational process then just learning a list of techniques. Lastly, counter-measure for the knife is introduced into the module.

Module 2:

This module teaches a protection specialist to deal with aggressive behavior around doorways, walls, reception lines, and car doors with the primary focus being to protect the client and evacuate them from the threat. It also gets into more advanced levels of ground fighting when forced to the ground and is being held.

The second part of this module begins to introduce the environment around a vehicle and the various problems you may encounter as you move your principle in and out of the car. Students learn to use the car as a tool.

Module 4:

This program introduces tactical ground fighting and counter grappling. Due to the popularity of grappling, the chances of the protection agent ending up on the ground are higher.

The standard of the industry is to study grappling in order to counter grappling, this takes a great commitment from the protection specialist. This module gives a solid answer to counter this environment by using more of an anti-grappling mindset. It is the goal of the protection agent to end the encounter quickly, get back to your feet and back to the client.
